HealthNet

HealthNet can integrate with Electronic Health Records and Biometric devices.

to provide live input to the supply chain and requisition, ensuring medical supplies in real-time.

HealthNet integrates with current inventory and ERP systems and aggregates data.

to ensure accuracy of supply information.

HealthNet IoT sensors integrate along the supply chain to provide secure location tracking.

and monitor important attributes like temperature as the items are in transit.

Product use is automatically recorded and entered into a patient's Electronic Health Record (EHR).

4

to provide clinical support and long-term tracking of the product.

5

information from the EHR can also be used to assist the clinician.

5

when certain products are used (verifying blood type for instance).

6

Live demand is feed into HealthNet's machine learning models which forecast demand and provide prescriptive insights for optimal inventory management.

6

This model can be adjusted based on environmental and seasonality factors, such as operational uptempo.

7

Aspects of product usage are logged to a blockchain.

7

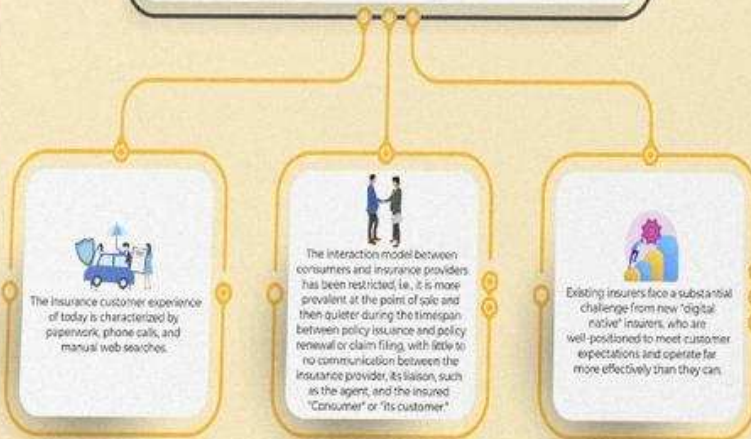

where data recorded can be used for audit functions such as product recalls or clinical trials.

Today's Interaction between the Insured and the Insurer

The pathway towards better customer experience:

Digital experiences are becoming a bigger part of people's lives, and as they do, they expect these experiences and their relationships with insurers to become more direct.

Consumers would like to know that their assets are adequately insured and protected from external events such as natural catastrophes, robbery, and misplacing or losing their belongings.

The Solution:

YOLOW

YOLOW is positioned to disrupt this interaction, engineered to remove the friction in today's legacy experience
